

RABBIT FUR NEW TRIMMING FOR HATS

PARISIAN MILLINERS WILL USE THEM TO DECORATE MILADY'S BONNET.

The secret is out. Local people now know what a certain gentleman of Shewah, Wash., wanted of rabbit skins. Through the Commercial club of this city he paid ten cents a piece for hides last winter up until Feb. 1 and there was much speculation as to what he would do with them. It seems that he is sending them to France where they are converted into trimmings for milady's hats. Probably these same skins will return to this state and bring in their new service, about one hundred times ten cents. The fact that the hides are in demand may prove an inducement for the systematic hunting of jackrabbits. The news of the shipment to Paris is contained in the following letter sent out from Chewah:

"The Chewah postoffice is giving the postoffice department a new experience in parcel post shipments through the shipment of 80,000 rabbit skins by Oppenheimer Bros. to Paris, France.

"The receiving of the skins from the outside points, which was mostly through the postoffice, did not cause so much work but outgoing shipments were what for a time taxed the department to keep up the necessary supply of customs invoices, which are drawn in blank on linen tag board about the size of a postal card for each foreign government.

"The first consignment of 500 packages drew the supply from the large offices in the district—Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane and Lewiston—and still there was a shortage until a requisition could be made upon the department."

Orpheum.

"Thor, Lord of the Jungles," a romance written by James Oliver Curwood for the Selig company will be the feature at the Orpheum theater at Tuesday's change of pictures. This picture was produced by F. J. Grandon at the Selig zoo at Los Angeles and is one of the most remarkable photodramas that it will be the good fortune of Pendleton people to see. It is in three reels.

Henry Barium, son of a circus owner, goes to Africa to secure wild animals for his father's menagerie. On the edge of the jungle his caravan rests by the home of John Brant, a Dutch South African farmer. He is enlisted to go with the expedition. Gene Brant, his beautiful daughter, is a child of the country, and singular in a certain sense of daring that gives her remarkable control over the denizens of the jungle. Barium is not slow to observe the beauty of Gene.

The scene flashes to Thor, Lord of the Jungles, a splendid black maimed African lion. He gives a roar that attracts the attention of two Kaffir hunters. The action reverts back to the human interest. Gene and Barium are walking alone. Jan, who is in love with the girl, sees them. Presently, when Barium attempts a liberty, Jan springs upon him and hurls him to the earth. Gene, fearing that Jan will kill the man, pulls him off his victim. Her touch restores the infuriated fighter to his senses and he deserts the scene. When Gene gets back to the camp she finds a brief note from him saying he has gone to the Transvaal Mines. The next scene shows the lion in the pit and wildly struggling in the net.

At the same hour Mrs. Rose addressed the women of the city in the M. E. church and every part of the auditorium and class rooms were crowded.

The Saturday night address of Dr. Bulglin was on the Resurrection of Jesus and based on the witnesses to such fact as recorded in 1 Cor. 15th chapter, and the text was Matt. 22:42. "What think ye of Christ?" He has been mentioned as the best sermon Dr. Bulglin has given. Some thoughts from it are as follows: The reason men try so hard to disprove the resurrection is plain. If this one miracle stands, then all miracles stand. There is more proof and better than the resurrection took place than that either George Washington or Napoleon Bonaparte lived and died their life work.

The only one who can look death in the face and laugh at it is the genuine Christian, for he knows that death no longer has a sting. "What think ye of Christ? Is he a man or a God, or will you let him alone? If he is a man only, then you make yourself ridiculous, for you must surpass him, or account for him and his life and influence in and on the world. He stands far above all great or near great men. Is he God? Then you are insolent not to obey him, for he is the only antidote to sin's poison. Will you let him alone? Then you are insolent because here is the testimony of the ages, down to the new converts in this tabernacle saying, He has helped me. And the man on the outside of Christ can't testify of the joys of fellowship with him.

"Paul put the resurrection of Jesus as the first great truth of the Gospel, and named it the power of the resurrection, and he was right for if that stands we have miracles, the Bible, heaven and hell in all their realities. You can trace any historical day back to its origin, so when we follow the Lord's Day, or Easter back we strike the resurrection. Ask Paul what turned him about from a $17,000 salary to preaching the story of the gospel with all the persecution that was heaped on him to death, and

At the Mercy of the Contractor

Every man who builds of lumber or concrete is almost wholly at the mercy of the contractor, who can easily without your knowing it substitute a lower grade of material than that called for in the specifications. Wherever the contractor has the opportunity to use the cheaper lumber or "skimp the cement" he is tempted to do it, for the substitution means just that much more profit for him. And we know a lot of contractors who don't require much tempting; you know them, too.

However, if you build of brick, it will be different, for a brick is a brick and no contractor can alter its superior qualities. He must put it into the building just as it comes from the brick yard.

Will you tempt the contractor's honesty or will you protect your investment by building of brick?
